Introduction

A YEAR old on May 29, 1940, and still growing—in popularity, yes, and in size, too—is Sunset Bowling Center, world famous home of the 52 lanes in a row and the largest ever built on one floor.

Since its spectacular opening which rivalled Hollywood's most garish premiere for celebrities, color and excitement, Sunset Center has never known a lustreless moment.

This Ten Pin Paradise overlooks Hollywood's busiest thoroughfare, Sunset Blvd., for an eighth of a mile, covering 12½ acres bounded by Van Ness on the east, Bronson on the west, Fernwood on the south and Sunset Blvd. on the north. Its tall towers and twinkling lights are among the film capitol's most familiar landmarks.

From Mayor of Los Angeles, Fletcher Bowron, to the humblest taxpayer; from Studio Chieftain Harry M. Warner to the most insignificant extra; from the greatest bowlers in the world to the rankest dub, Sunset Bowling Center has received enthusiastic acclaim. All have left their mark on its shimmering lanes.

Since the day of its conception, this bowling showplace of the world has been under the astute, aggressive supervision of Managing Director Harry L. Charnas, long one of the gay White Way's most noted showmen. As a result of his high idealism, the sport has been made to look vastly more attractive, particularly in the eyes of women and children.

Many old-timers, at first resentful of such a spectacular intrusion, now agree that the 52 lane mansion has done more for bowling on the West coast than any other single or combined agency.

Sunset Center is a far cry from the days when one man operated his own establishment in country store fashion.

Today bowling is big business on a vast scale. This magnificent bowling edifice represents an investment of $1,500,000. It employs 185 persons during the regular season. At the end of its first year it had already spent an additional $20,000 for bowling balls, $5000 for pins and $7500 for machinery to keep the lanes in perfect condition. Shellac for the pins and lanes ran into an expenditure of $40,000 annually while more than 1,000 pounds of steel wool was used to help maintain a clean, cheerful appearance at all times. $15,000 worth of electricity alone was consumed, indicating more than anything else the magnitude of the enterprise.

The world's largest bowling house on one floor, it is located in the heart of Hollywood on the old Warner Bros. Sunset lot. The lanes themselves are stretched out over hallowed floor that was formerly Stage 1. It was on this stage that Al Jolson mammied his way to fame in the world's first talking picture.

Today the grind of the camera and shouts of the directors have given way to the muffled crash of falling pins and cheering spectators.

The dedication of Sunset Bowling Center to health, a wealth of joyous living and the happiness of enduring friendships is being religiously observed as the meek and the mighty go bowling along together.

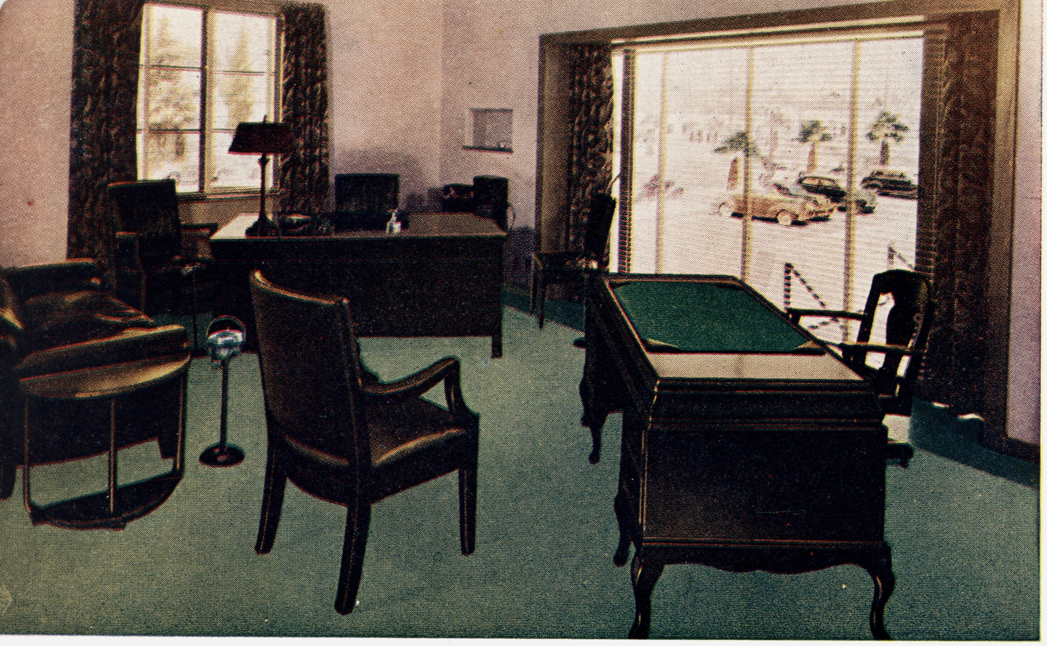
Operation of beautiful Sunset Bowling Center has been put into skillful hands, well trained in the principals of quick, efficient and courteous service.

Intricate and expensive buzzer, telatalk and public address systems permit direct communication with the most remote corners of the house, thereby enabling employees to set enviable records for speed and dispatch in handling large crowds.



Executive

COMFORTABLE, enchanting surroundings for bowlers and pleasant working conditions for employees are the keynote at Sunset Bowling Center. Above is shown the office of the managing director, Harry Charnas, one of the most prominent showmen in the country and a pioneer in the early days of the film industry. He was fourteen years managing director of the metropolitan New York theatre district for Warner Bros. Theatres. In the background can be seen a view of the spacious auto park, where uniformed attendants are at the service of patrons.

Cheer to hundreds of crippled children resulted from the opening of Sunset Bowling Center. Admissions were charged at the premiere and the entire proceeds turned over to charity. Lower left, Managing Director Harry Charnas, lower left, is shown presenting Mrs. Budd Frankenfield and Hal G. Farras a check for $1,000.00 for the Crippled Children's Hospital of Hollywood.

Even Mayor of Los Angeles Fletcher Bowron and the City Council succumbed to the lure of Sunset Center during the 1940 season. His Honor's team made a gallant stand but lost to the Councilmen in a hectic match. Between games, the Mayor found time to talk things over with little Twinkle Watts, 4½ year old bowling sensation. Using a six-pound ball against standard pins, Twinkle has bowled several games in the high 180's.

'Tis said, "A chain is no stronger - - -

The foundation of greater entertainment.

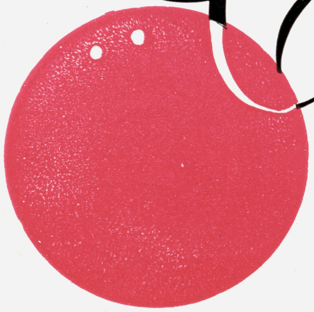
ONE of the world's most famous sound stages becomes the world's greatest kegling casino. Hollywood's first talking picture was filmed on stage 1 of the Warner Bros. Sunset lot.

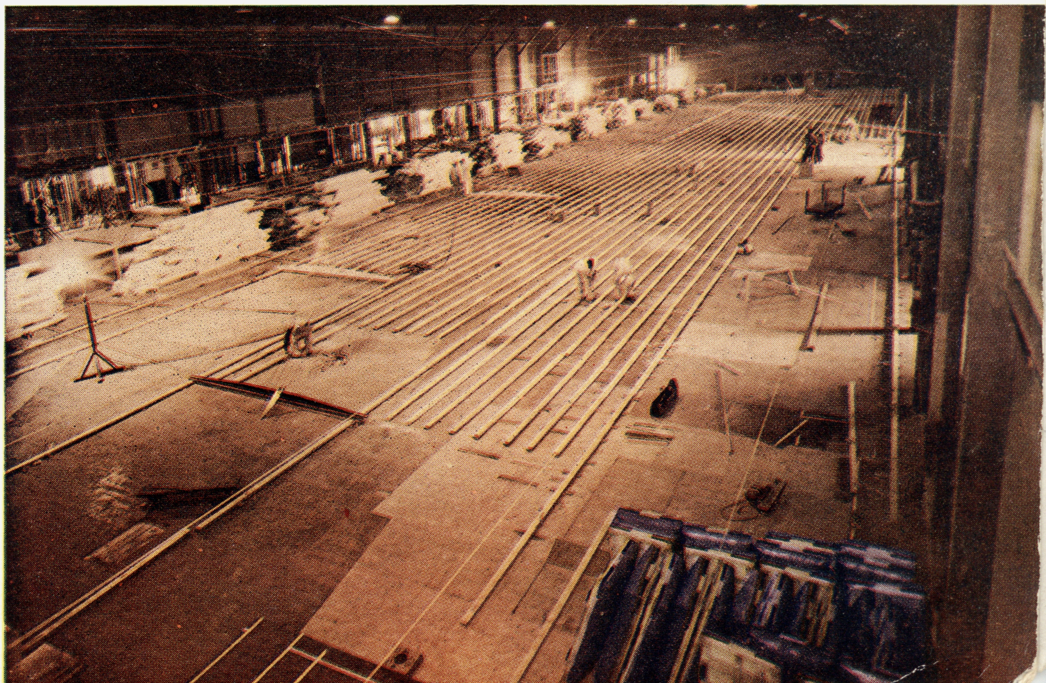
In 1934 the rapid growing studio moved to Burbank. And in 1939 construction was started to convert the grand old stage into a recreation center. Workmen are shown below laying the groundwork. On May 30, 1939, Sunset Bowling Center's doors were thrown open to the public for the first time. Success was instantaneous and unyielding.

Youth has its fling nightly at Sunset Center. Youngsters with million dollar careers as well as the "kids named Joe" find the famous home of the 52 lanes a safe, yet exciting playground. A recent convert to this fascinating sport is Freddie Bartholomew, top, explaining some of the vagaries of the game to the girl friend. Below Songbird Judy Garland has Jackie Cooper singing the blues over what would appear to be a serious discrepancy in the score.

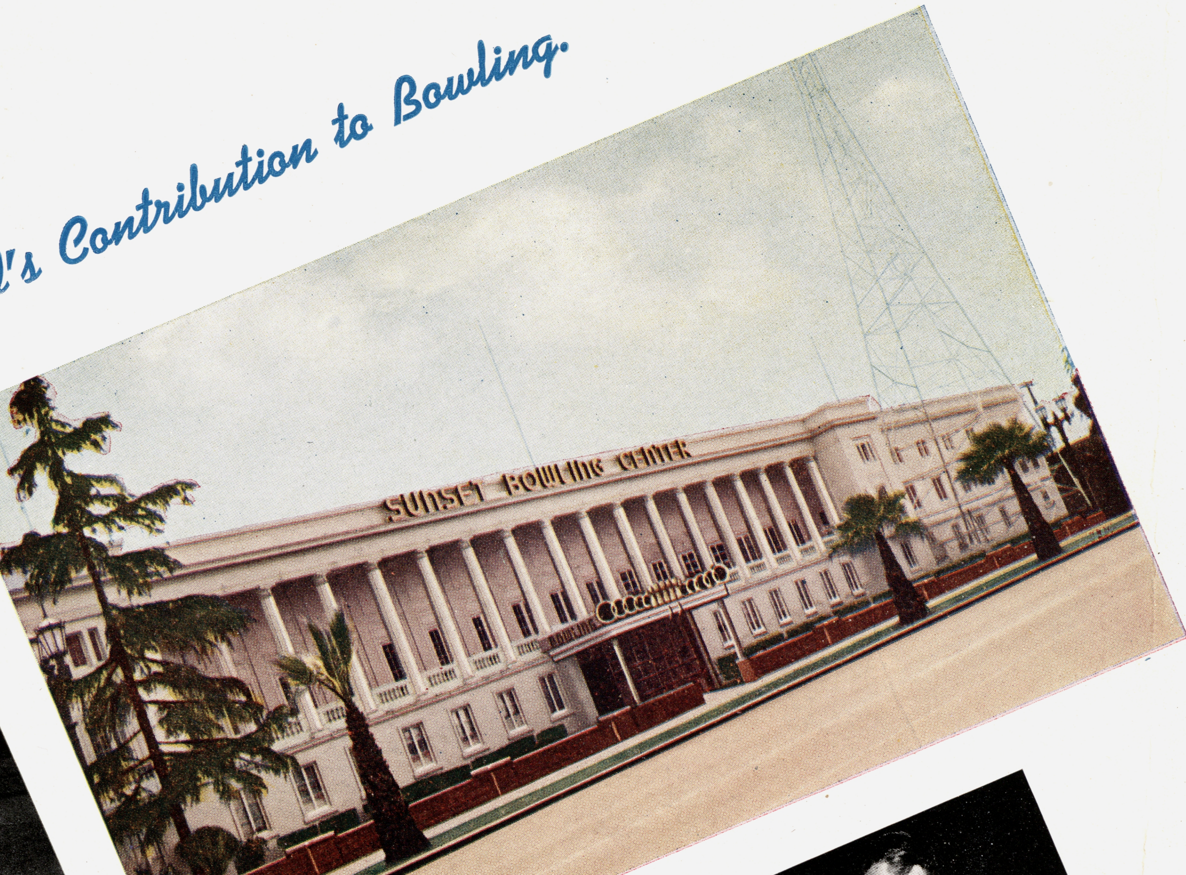
Always a delightful haven for spectators and sight-seers, Sunset offers a special treat to "non-combatants" every Sunday night during the present 1940-41 season. This is the activities of two of the fastest, finest leagues in the west—a 925 Classic for men and a 750 scratch for ladies. Bowling at its very best is on exhibition when the two groups open fire. The ladies league is composed to a large extent of wives and sweethearts of the men in the 925.

Construction





Hollywood's Contribution to Bowling.



Triumph

REACHING out for an eighth of a mile over one of Hollywood's best known boulevards, Sunset Bowling Center's statuesque exterior is hailed as the film capitol's newest and brightest landmark. Verdant, well-kept grounds and two tall towers on each side of the entrance add to the stately picture.

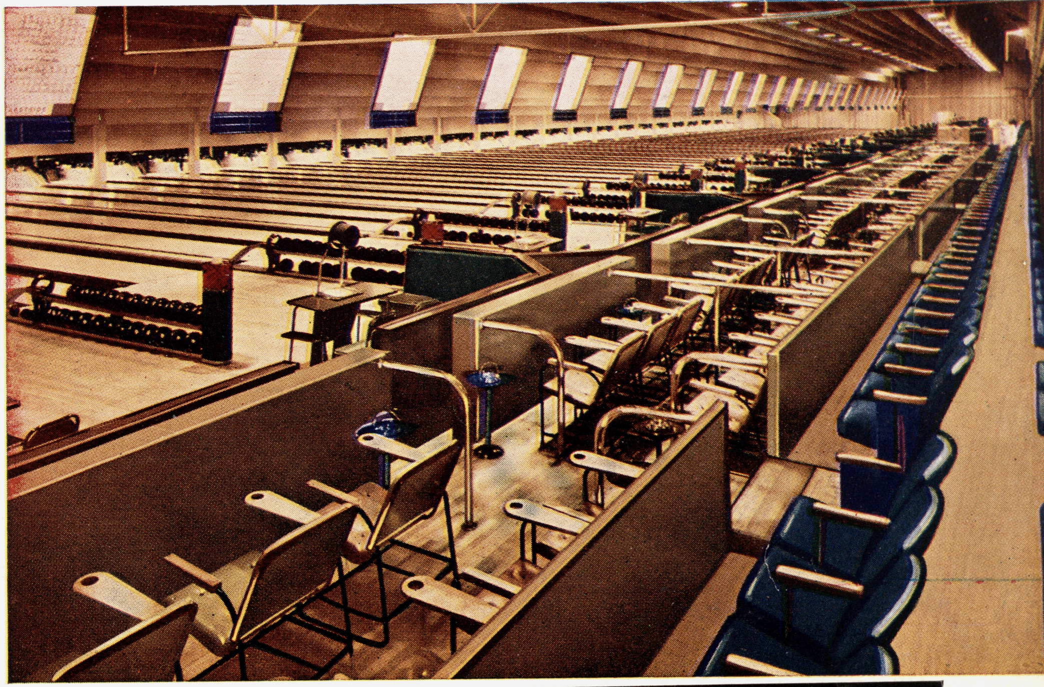
Picturesque



A VAST, awe-inspiring panorama of the famous 52 lanes greets spectators as they enter Sunset Bowling Center from the huge parking lot at the east end of the building. Seating facilities include fifty boxes patterned after the design used in America's most exclusive clubs and five hundred of the latest type theatre chairs. In all, comfortable seating is provided for more than 1000 spectators. Twenty-six overhanging scorecasters, much on the order of a movie screen, advise onlookers of the progress of every match as it develops shot by shot.

Adding color, allurement and distinction to house activities is a breezy, 15 minute radio program of bowling highlights, released over KFWB and affiliated stations every night in the year.

Lovely Marie Wilson carefully inspects the contents of the ammunition depot for a "strike" ball in the center photo. Below, Captain Max Stein points out the objective for his Warner Bros. A. B. C. team. Members are: left to right, Harold Magnuson, Vince Togneri, Carl Stoerkel, Mike Hellar, Bill Swank and Stein. This team, representing the pick of the Warner Bros. lot, proved one of the best from the coast in the 1940 American Bowling Congress, winning approximately $300 in prize money.

Ammunition

TONS of ammunition for bowlers is held in place by the 26 ball racks, flanked by an equal number of chalk boxes at Sunset Bowling Center. Bowlers can pick from a wide assortment of close to 1,000 twelve and sixteen pound missiles. The booth above the lanes is the remote control room of KFWB which is utilized nightly.

Every effort to encourage participation by high school and junior high school students is made by the Sunset management. Many youngsters have formed bowling clubs and leagues. Special rates and beautiful gold pins for high scores are awarded them.

The selection of balls includes a large number of specially gripped and light weighted missiles for women and children.

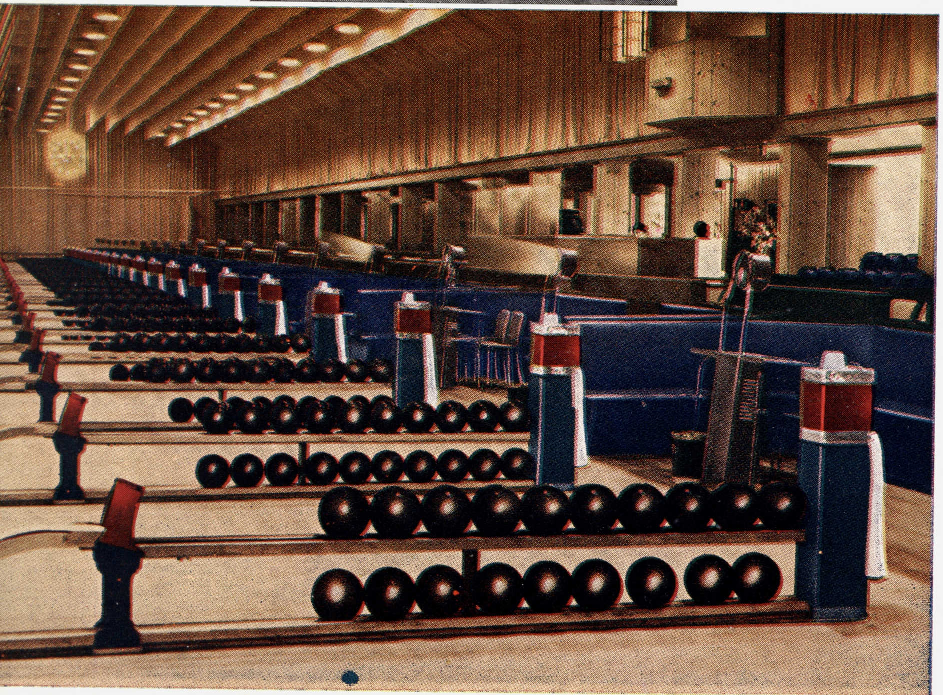
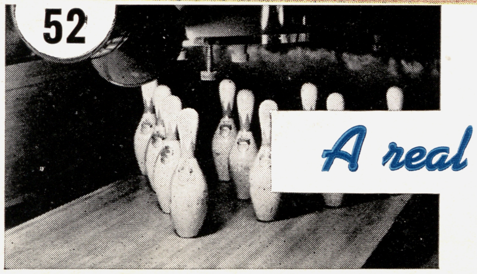
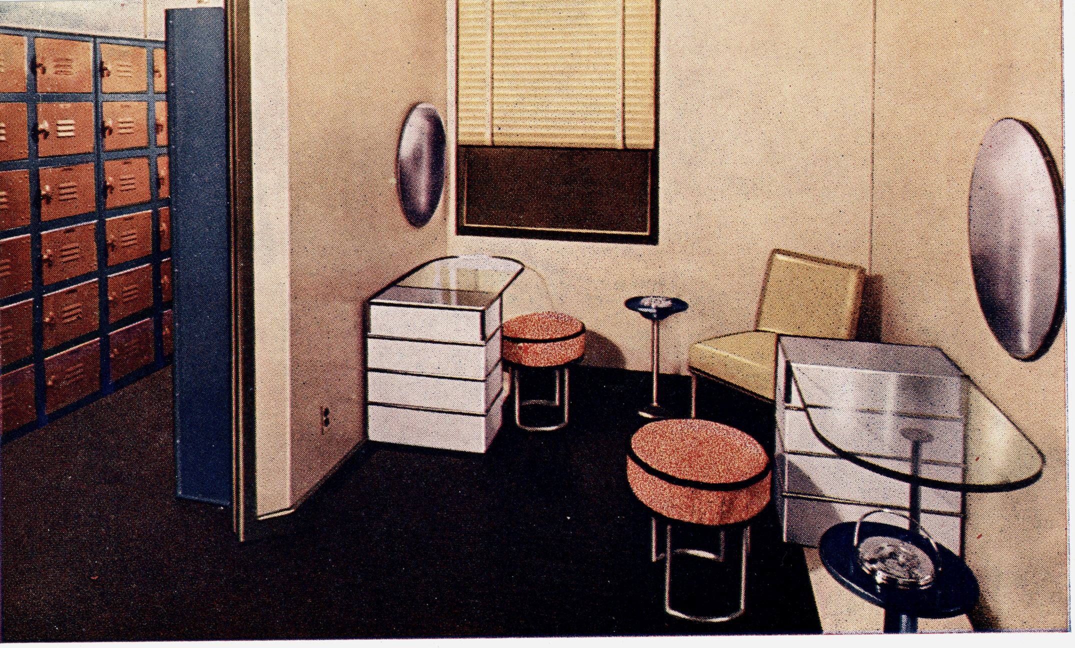
An innovation which resulted in much enjoyment for the bowlers was the creation of an inter-league playoff. A magnificent, three-foot perpetual trophy was put up by the house and scores of teams met every Sunday afternoon in quest of the prize.

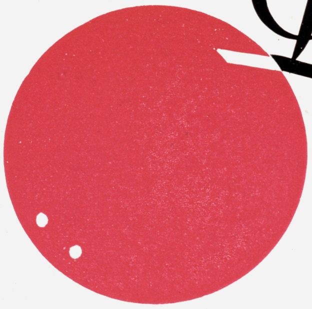




A real woodchopper's paradise.



Queenly...



FOLLOWING in the footsteps of the men, an enthusiastic group of girls from the Southern California Telephone Co. have formed a 1940-41 fall league to compete at Sunset Bowling Center. Above is shown several of the teams, composed of many girls who had bowled only a few weeks when this was taken. Under Sunset's magic spell they have become inveterate keglers.

Another colorful girls' league was that formed by Marie Fontayne, famed for her model and charm school. Several are shown, center, nattily attired in shorts and bowling blouses. Front row, left to right, they are Jean O'Donald, Betty Miller and Mary Mollenhoff. Standing, Marie Fontayne, Lorena Morren, Margueriette Kay and Bernice Brown.

Below, film stars Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, attired in slacks, and Andy Varipapa join the Fontayne Models in launching an exuberant, mass attack for the benefit of the cameraman, lucky fellow.

Luxurious quarters for Milady.

Here is "hunger haven."

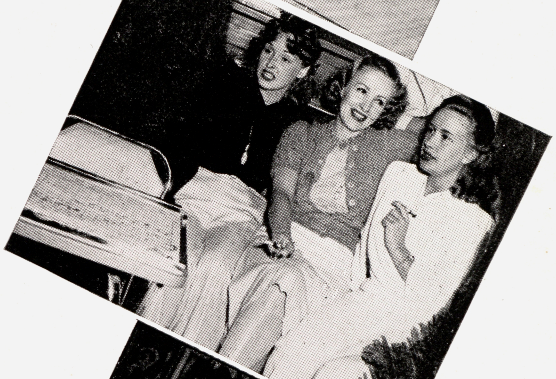
Epicurean

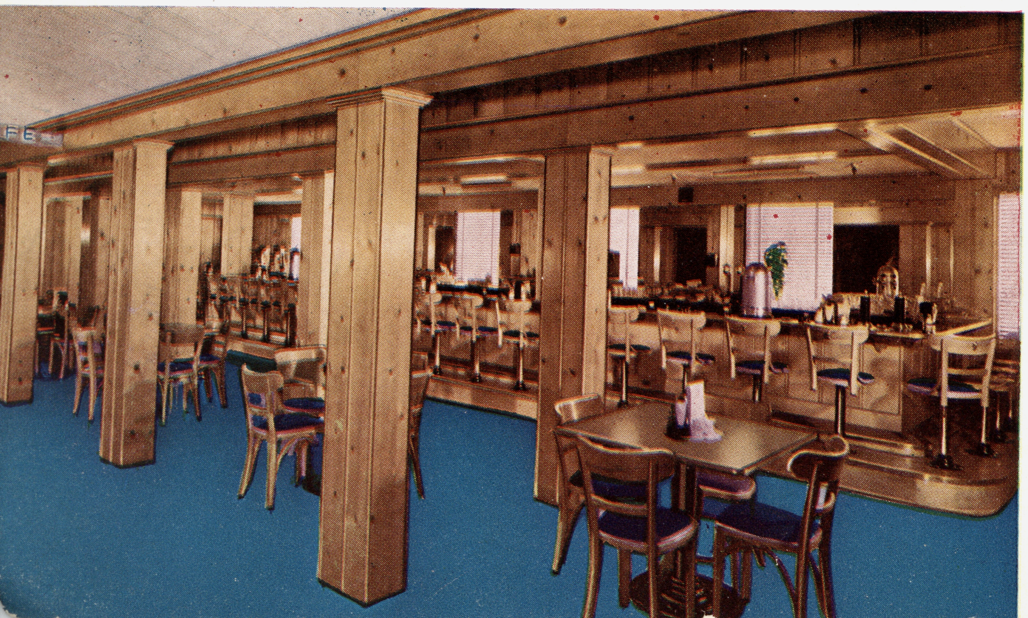
THE cafe, neat, spotless and alluring, offers an almost irresistible invitation to famished fun-seekers. Tasty dishes of the finest variety are offered at low prices, establishing this feature as a service to the bowlers rather than a business adjunct. A staff of pert, pretty floor girls is employed to serve the patrons both drinks and food on the lanes.

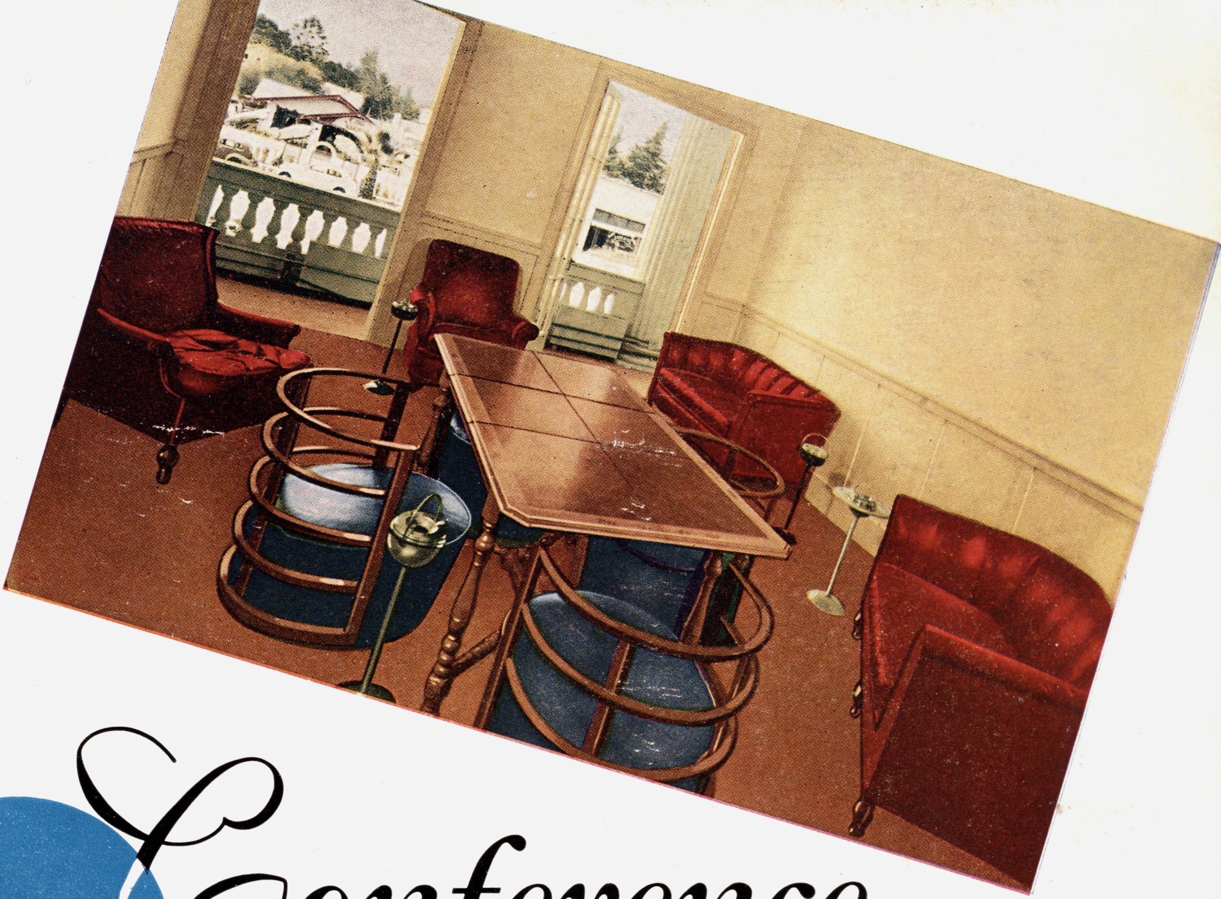
One of the world's greatest promoters of athletic events, Uncle Mike Jacobs of New York boxing fame, stopped off in Hollywood to enjoy the hospitality of the 52-lane house. Jacobs is shown upper left drawing a ten-strike bead on the lanes, while Managing Director Harry Charnas beams approval. The two master showmen are friends of long standing.

Sweetheart of Sunset Center is little Twinkle Watts, top photo, official house mascot, demonstrating perfect form for a girl of 4½ or any other age, for that matter. Bowling's biggest social event for the past season was a high spirited party given by the Lane sisters, Priscilla and Rosemary, and they are shown awaiting their turn to bowl with Claire Windsor, center. Scores of Hollywood's most famous stars were present.

Kiwanis club members from all over Southern California held their season's playoff at Sunset Center to the accompaniment of the cheers of a capacity house. One of the best known Kiwanians, Andy Devine, is caught shooting one from the far corner. During construction days, as now, Sunset was visited by debutantes Rosetta Towns, Rosett Rixon and Lya Lys, shown with a workman. Another distinguished guest was Dizzy Dean, below, winding up a "fog ball."







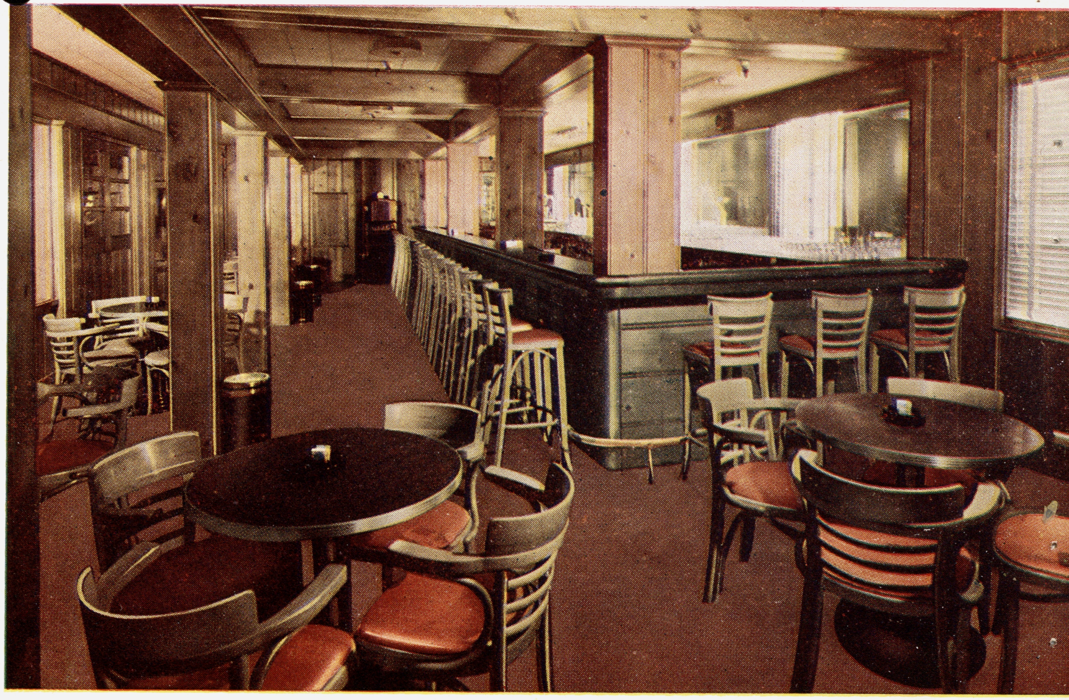
Conference

TEN comfortable, smartly decorated league rooms on the order of the above are available to the patrons of Sunset Bowling Center at all times, giving it a home-like atmosphere almost entirely foreign to the average recreation center. These rooms are utilized by bowlers, bridge players and others for meetings and relaxation. All are serviced by dumb waiters directly to and from the cocktail room and restaurant. They are located on the second floor in company with the offices of the management.

Great boosters for anything that smacks of sport, Joe E. Brown and John Garfield have put their stamp of approval on Sunset Bowling Center in particular. They are shown here wishing each other the best of luck before starting in quest of a couple of 300 games.

Soft cushions and weighty problems.

Refreshment



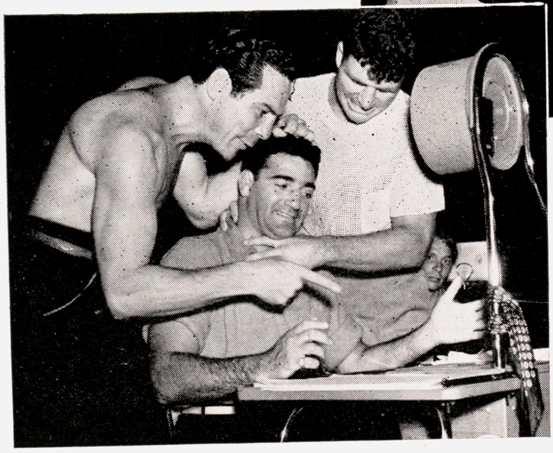
REFRESHMENT bent keglers find the cocktail lounge at Sunset Bowling Center a study of architectural beauty and smart comfort. Spacious windows afford the patron a splendid view of the bowling activity on the outer lanes. Only the finest beverages are served. Needless to say, it has become one of the most popular haunts in Hollywood.

Match of the year occurred when Mr. Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Bros. Studio, hooked up with Mr. Y. Frank Freeman, vice president of Paramount in a friendly match game. Victory went to Mr. Warner, caught in action, upper left.

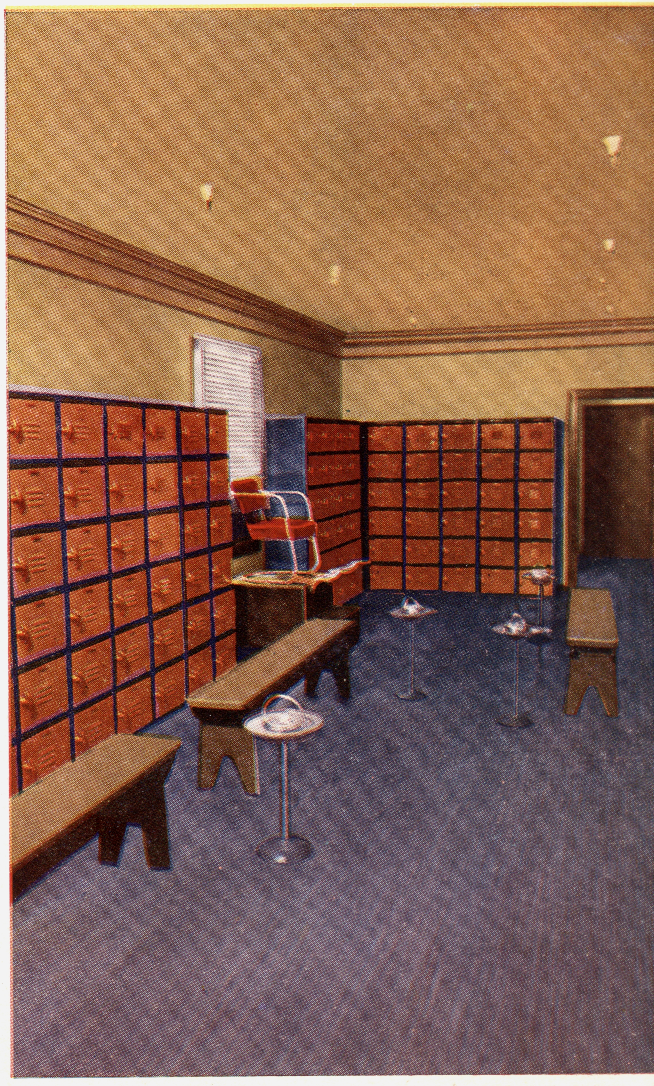
First stop for the visiting keglers is always Sunset Center. All of the greatest stars in the game have tested its lanes. Center: Andy Varipapa, great trick shot artist, demonstrates the most approved form. Below: Claire Windsor (right) and Rosemary Lane and Harvey Priester stage a mock battle after a game.

A toast to the fine art of kegling.

Comfort



Dress up and shine 'em up!



BOWLING comforts do not cease once the patron leaves the lanes at Sunset Bowling Center. A spick and span locker room, presided over by uniformed attendants, awaits his pleasure. Lockers and showers are available free of charge to the bowlers. A shoe shine stand is visible near the window.

Professional men, whether artistic or athletic, find bowling a great stimulant for both mind and body. The exuberant foursome above is composed of, left to right, Allan Lane, film star; Ned Day; Harold Lloyd, famous screen comedian and an ardent bowler; and Max Stein, Sunset professional and holder of the all time all events record of 2070 in the A.B.C. and the Pacific Coast record of 855 for 3 games.

Center, Eddie Sullivan, columnist, and Bugs Baer, celebrated humorist, learn the correct grip from Stein. Below, Scorekeeper-wrestler Sammy Stein appears to be in difficulty. Both Max Baer, left, and Lou Nova, protest Sammy's arithmetic. Nova and Baer met in a special match game following their heavyweight fight in New York which was won by Nova. However, Baer reversed the decision on the lanes, proving adept at controlling the 16-pound missle.

Time goes bowling along.

Unique!!

Every detail in the construction of Sunset Bowling Center was woven around one colorfully spectacular pattern. No item was too minute to be considered. Two giant clocks, majestically holding sway at each end of the 52 lanes, typify the spirit of the bowling showplace of the world. Brilliantly lighted by yellow tubing, these huge silent sentries are eighteen feet in circumference and blend perfectly with their surroundings. At night Sunset Center can be seen twinkling invitingly from miles away behind a radiant web of more than 10,000 feet of Fluron lighting.

Upper right, Jerry Colona and Bob Hope clown for the benefit of the spectators at the opening of the dazzling pin emporium, which rivalled that of wood's greatest premiere.

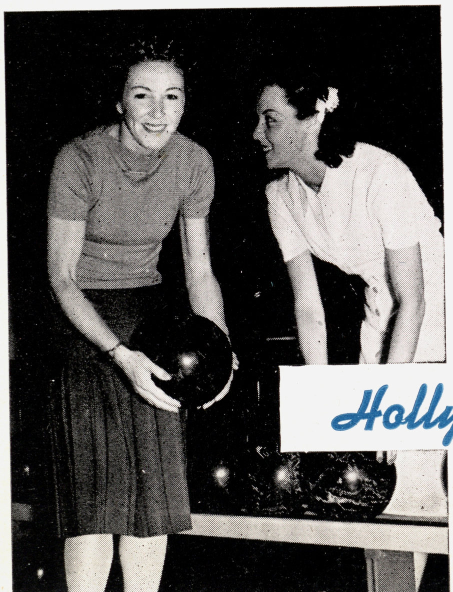
Splendor

HEALTH authorities endorse bowling as a most beneficial exercise for both mind and body. Women are speedily adopting the game as their favorite pastime.

Shown below are three girls whose success depends on grace, beauty of figure and unfailing health. They are, top, Lois Platton, queen of the famous Earl Carroll revue, Bess Erhardt and Evelyn Chandler, stars of the fancy skating world.

Authorities state bowling provides the same benefits as morning exercises, or gymnasium workouts without the resultant monotony of forced conditioning. In addition, they point out, it cultivates co-ordination and relaxes the mind.

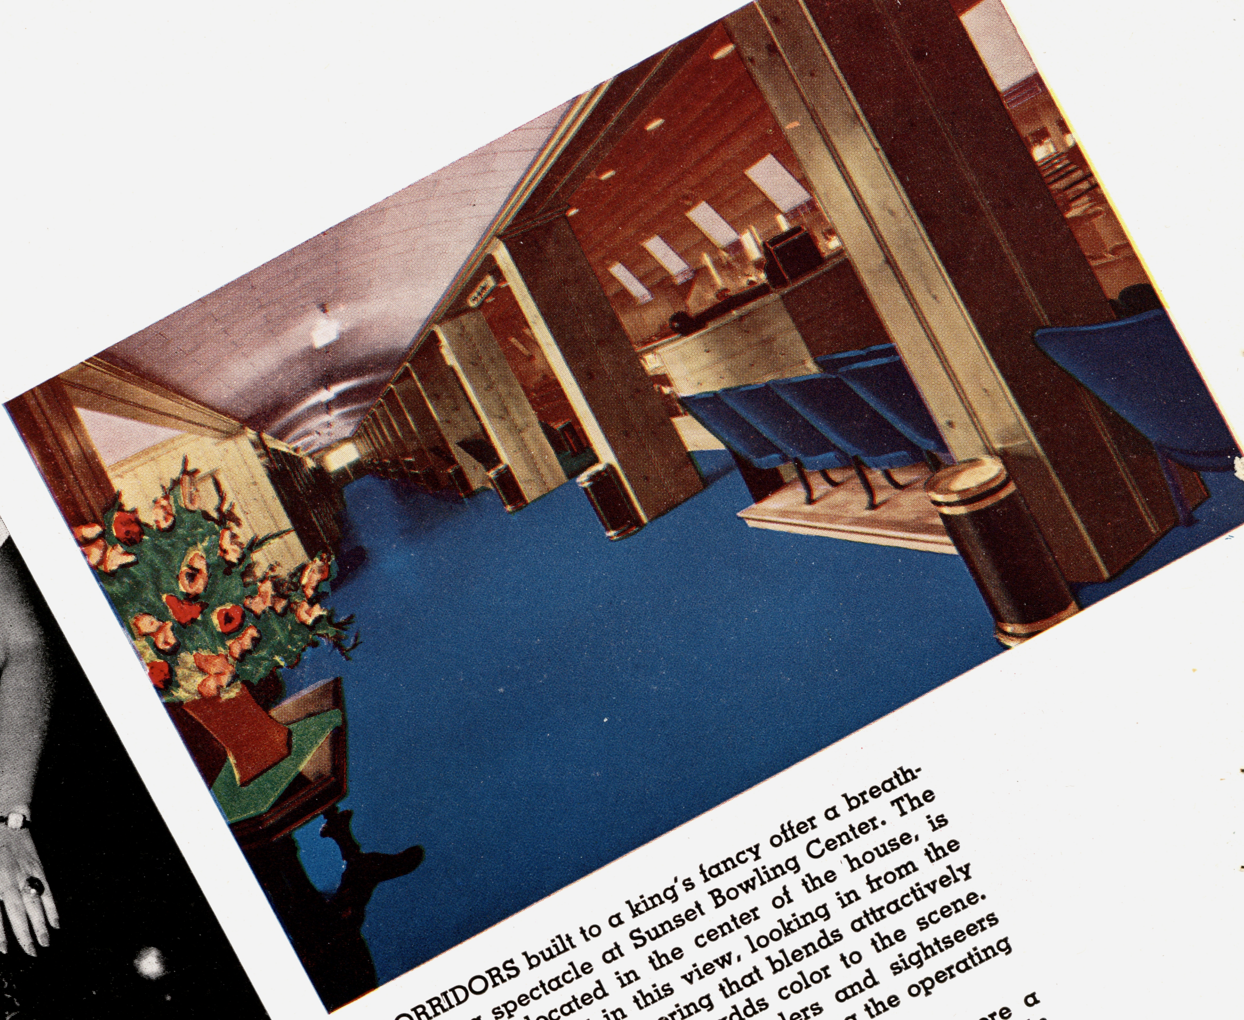
Mammoth Sunday afternoon playoffs saw the following teams lined up against each other in competition for a beautiful, three-foot trophy: Warner Bros. vs. Paramount; M.G.M. vs. 20th Century Fox; Columbia vs. Universal; So. Cal. Gas Co. vs. Dept. of Water and Power; Warner Bros. vs. M.G.M.; State Employees vs. Los Angeles Times. Special playoffs also were held by the Rotarians, Kiwanians, Arden Dairy, L. A. Stamp and Stationery Co., Union Oil Co., and the Board of Education. These events proved a riot of color and interest for spectators and contestants alike and will be continued in 1940-41.



Hollywood's newest, most popular playground.

Palatial - -

Orchids & roses to bowling.



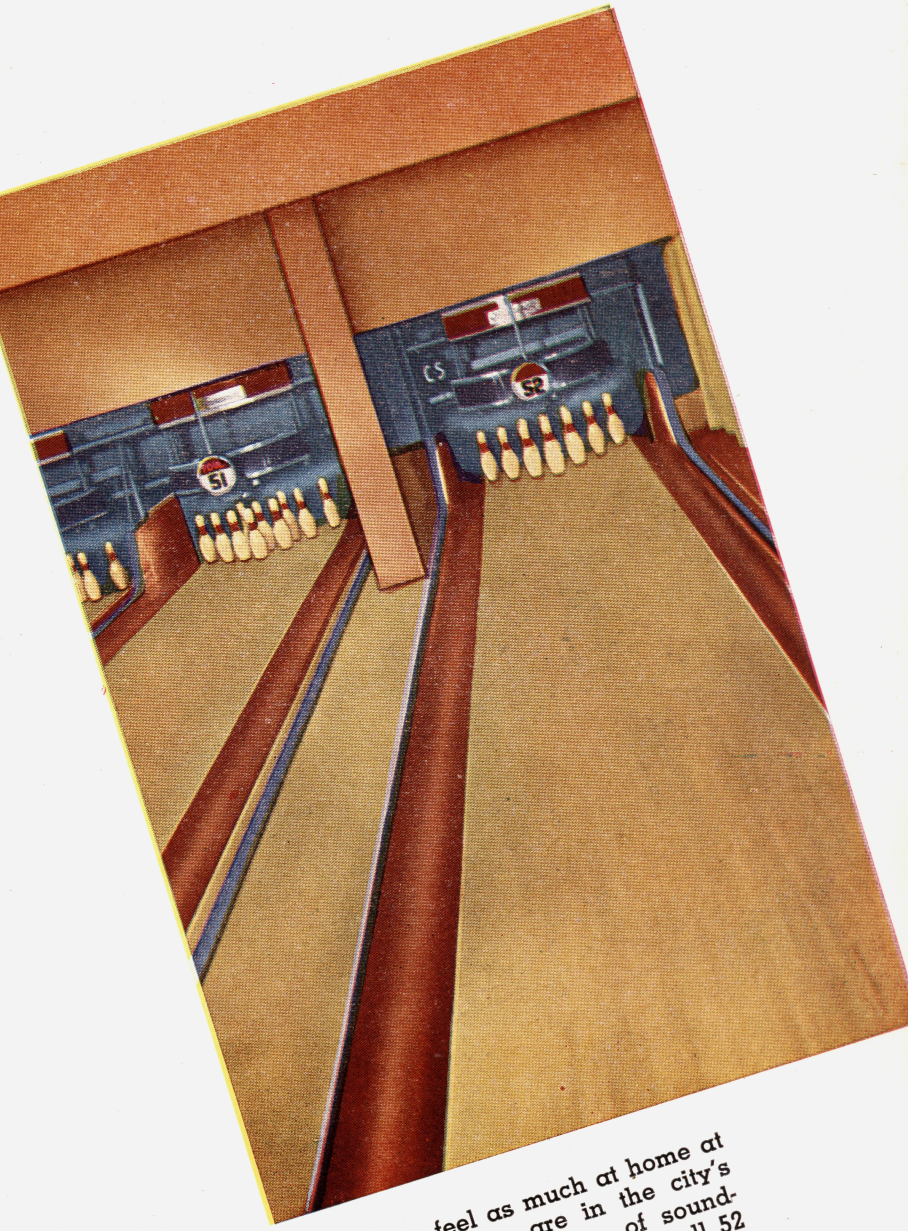
CORRIDORS built to a king's fancy offer a breathtaking spectacle at Sunset Bowling Center. The control desk, located in the center of the house, is shown on the right in this view, looking in from the west. A special blue flooring that blends attractively with the other decorations adds color to the scene. It is estimated that 10,000 bowlers and sightseers pass through this corridor daily during the operating hours of from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m.

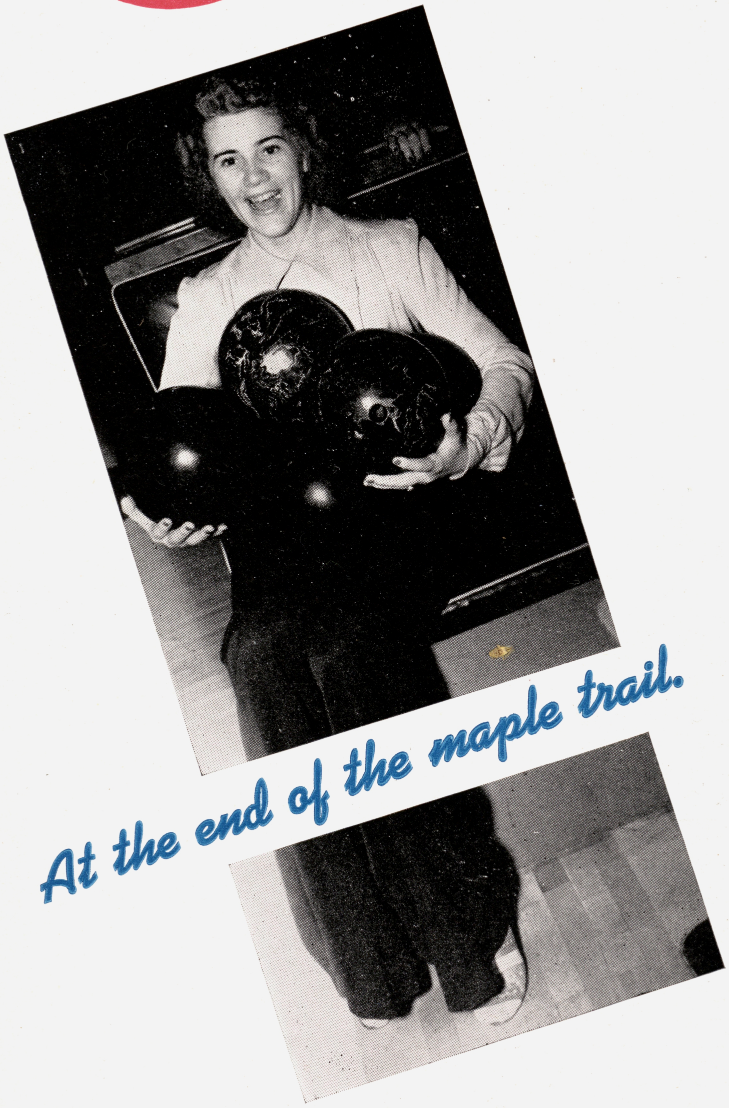
To many, every match is played as if it were a matter of life or death. Such is not necessarily so in the case of pretty Margaret Lindsey, however, although she does appear to be about ready to strangle something. Maybe the last one went in the gutter.

Below, actress Mavis Wrixon pauses to mark down a strike.

Among the many conveniences inaugurated for the kegler by Sunset was that of permitting league players to purchase balls and other equipment on a time payment plan. Hundreds of bowlers, who otherwise would have been unable to enjoy the advantages of owning their own equipment, benefitted by this innovation.

The End





At the end of the maple trail.

ENTIRE families are made to feel as much at home at Sunset Bowling Center as they are in the city's finest theatre. Through an ingenious system of soundproofing, bowlers can talk in whispers even when all 52 lanes are going at the same time. The noise is so muffled that many babies have been observed sleeping in cribs in back of the lanes while the rest of the family bowls.

Older children can now bowl along with their parents as a result of Sunset's many special, light-weighted balls for youngsters.

The problem of how to keep the fellow on the next lane from using your favorite strike-getter is solved here by Elsie Johnson, skating queen. Like thousands of other women, Miss Johnson prefers Sunset because of its clean, wholesome, home-like atmosphere.

At each end of the house, special sections have been set up so that it is possible to curtain off a number of lanes for private parties.

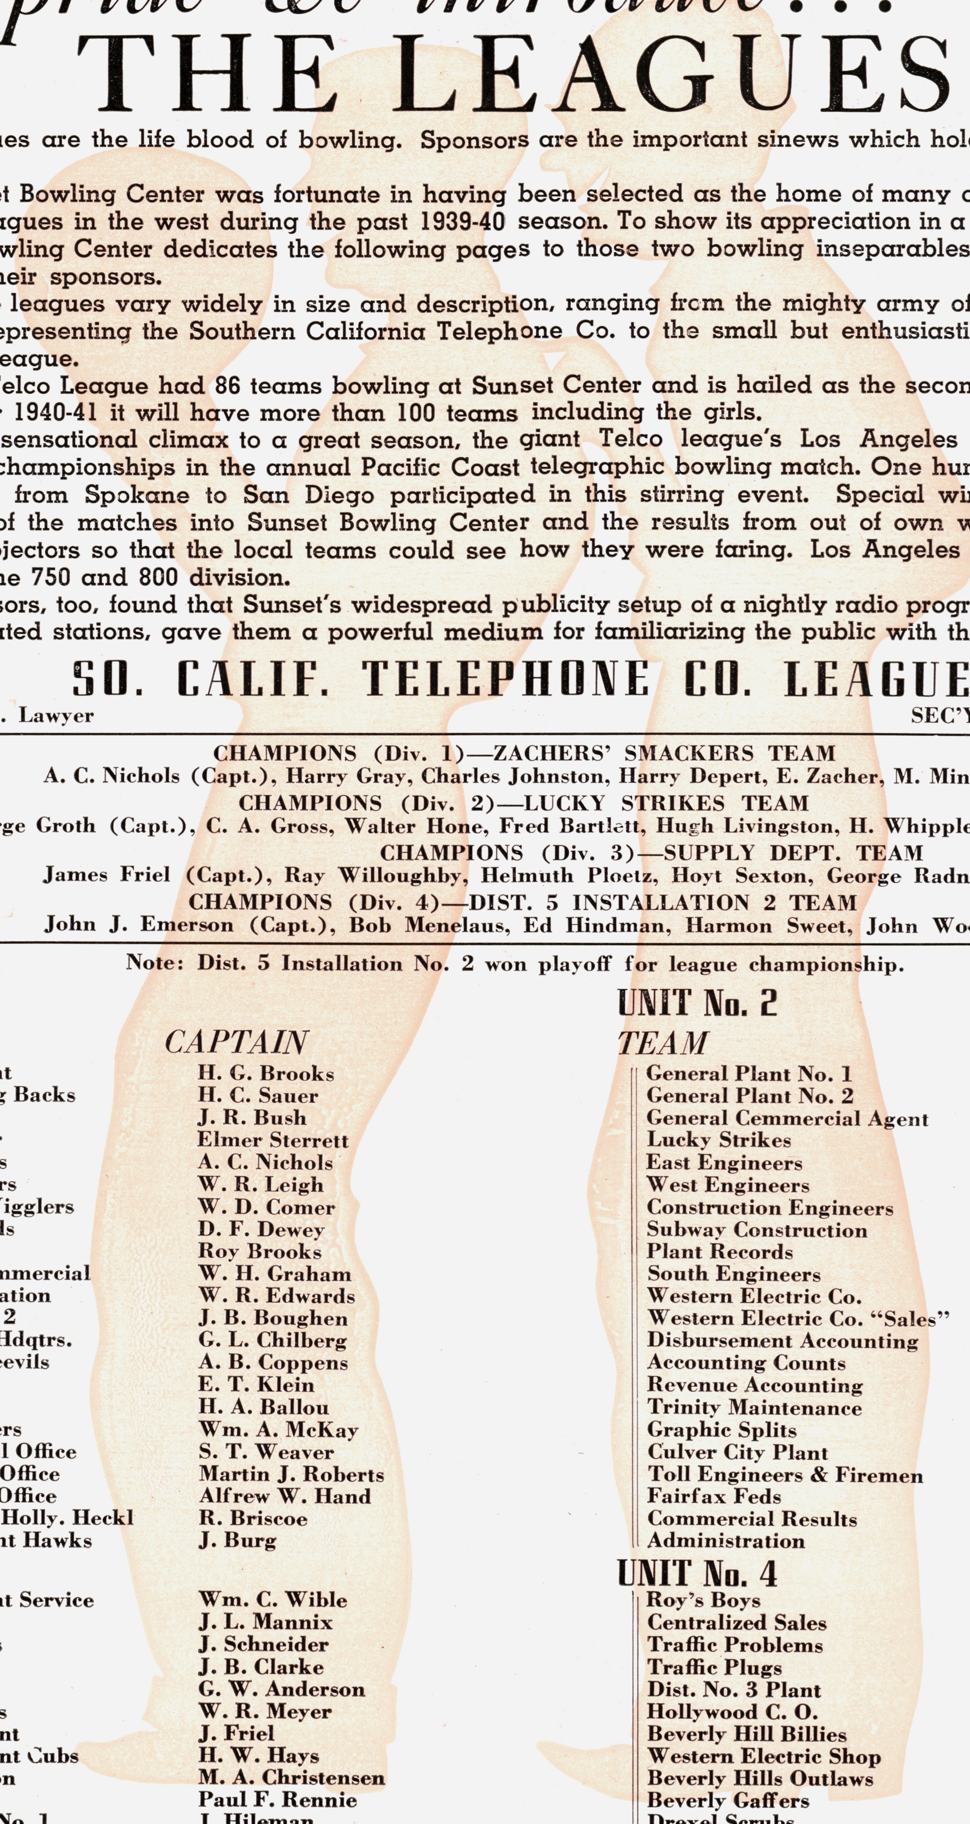
THE LEAGUES



Leagues are the life blood of bowling. Sponsors are the important sinews which hold those leagues together.

Sunset Bowling Center was fortunate in having been selected as the home of many of the finest and largest leagues in the west during the past 1939-40 season. To show its appreciation in a small measure, Sunset Bowling Center dedicates the following pages to those two bowling inseparables—league bowlers and their sponsors.

These leagues vary widely in size and description, ranging from the mighty army of more than 600 bowlers representing the Southern California Telephone Co. to the small but enthusiastic six team, All Brothers League.

The Telco League had 86 teams bowling at Sunset Center and is hailed as the second largest in the world. For 1940-41 it will have more than 100 teams including the girls.

As a sensational climax to a great season, the giant Telco league's Los Angeles representatives won two championships in the annual Pacific Coast telegraphic bowling match. One hundred and forty-six teams from Spokane to San Diego participated in this stirring event. Special wires brought the progress of the matches into Sunset Bowling Center and the results from out of own were flashed on movie projectors so that the local teams could see how they were faring. Los Angeles won championships in the 750 and 800 division.

Sponsors, too, found that Sunset's widespread publicity setup of a nightly radio program over KFWB, and affiliated stations, gave them a powerful medium for familiarizing the public with their products.

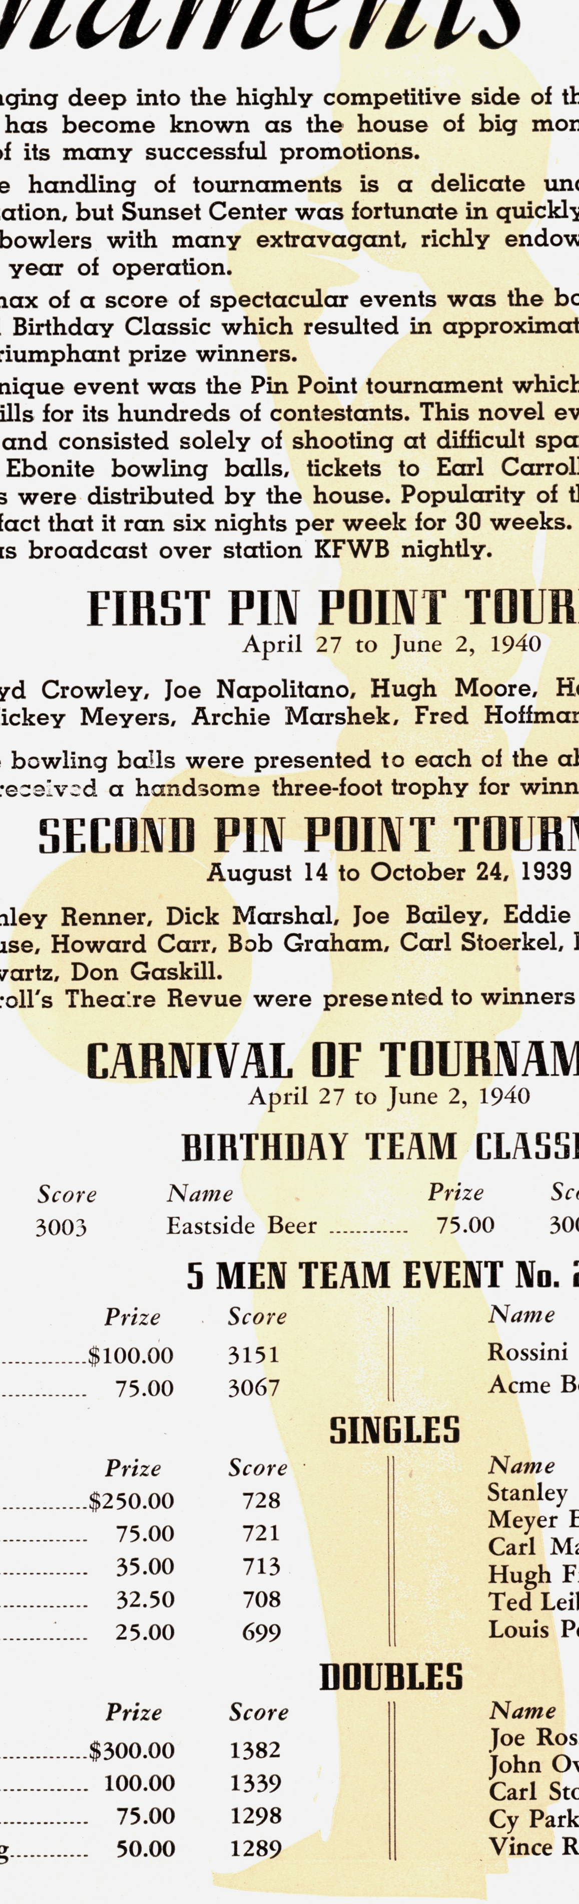
Tournaments



Plunging deep into the highly competitive side of the sport, Sunset Bowling Center has become known as the house of big money tournaments as the result of its many successful promotions.

The handling of tournaments is a delicate undertaking for any new organization, but Sunset Center was fortunate in quickly winning the confidence of the bowlers with many extravagant, richly endowed tournaments during its first year of operation.

Climax of a score of spectacular events was the bowling showplace's First Annual Birthday Classic which resulted in approximately $2500.00 being paid out to triumphant prize winners.

A unique event was the Pin Point tournament which provided many laughs and thrills for its hundreds of contestants. This novel event originated at Sunset Center and consisted solely of shooting at difficult spares. Such prizes as Mineralite Ebonite bowling balls, tickets to Earl Carroll's, bowling shoes and trophies were distributed by the house. Popularity of the tournament is shown by the fact that it ran six nights per week for 30 weeks. A play by play description was broadcast over station KFWB nightly.

FIRST PIN POINT TOURNAMENT

April 27 to June 2, 1940

WEEKLY WINNERS—Lloyd Crowley, Joe Napolitano, Hugh Moore, Harold Webster, Morris Sherry, John McCafferty, Al Halphide, Mickey Meyers, Archie Marshek, Fred Hoffman. GRAND CHAMPION, Lloyd Crowley.

Ebonite and Mineralite bowling balls were presented to each of the above by Sunset Bowling Center as a result of their victory. Crowley received a handsome three-foot trophy for winning the finals.

SECOND PIN POINT TOURNAMENT

August 14 to October 24, 1939

Six tickets to Earl Carroll's Theatre Revue were presented to winners of the Pin Point Revival by Sunset Bowling Center.

HOWARD W. FRANK DELINEATOR

ABOVE is shown the artist's conception of the new $2,000,000 Pleasure Island which will be erected on the former Warner Bros. Studio lot, present home of the famous Sunset Bowling Center. Among the many installations will be the addition of 47 more bowling lanes, extending into what is now the parking lot. In the new setup, cars are to be parked underground in special sections leading to whichever of the 26 sport arenas the patron wishes to enter. An underglass swimming pool, an ice skating rink, a rifle and pistol range, a rollerdrome and a miniature ski jump hill are also among the major installations under consideration.

League players contract for so many lanes during the fall that the casual bowler finds it increasingly difficult to secure playing time in the evenings. The exception to this is found on Saturdays and Sundays when open play is in effect all day and evening. During the week, lanes are available to non-leaguers from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

An inducement to morning and afternoon participation is free instruction by either Max Stein, A.B.C. champion, or one of Sunset's many charming instructresses. Special rates are also in effect, particularly in regards to schools, clubs and parties from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
